1. The principal office in Land Saxony which lists the values of SAGs is the Liquidation Office in Dresden, and this carries only Russian evaluations. The head of this office is Director Degenhardt, an elderly man who is indifferent to politics. The three leading personalities in SAG matters in Land Saxony are SED sympathizers. For this reason, according to source, German authorities in Saxony have not computed lists of the correct (as opposed to the Russian-compiled) values of SAGs.
2. The following evaluations were obtained from officials of firms now absorbed into Soviet AGs:
 - a. Louis Schopper, Leipzig, precision measuring instruments present German value, 4,000,000 RM, including 1,000,000 RM in property and buildings and the remainder in machinery; Russian accredited value 1,468,000 RM.
 - b. Gebr. Wetzel, machine factory, Leipzig: present German value 4,500,000 RM; present Russian value 3,000,000 RM, Russian accredited value 1,280,000 RM.
 - c. Deutsche Kugellagerfabrik, (ball bearings), Leipzig-Böhlitz-Ehrenberg: present German value 7,000,000 RM; Russian accredited value 5,000,000 RM.
 - d. Schumann and Co., machine factory, Leipzig: present German value 6,500,000 RM; Russian accredited value 3,000,000 RM.
 - e. Ernst Kunsch, Silbitz, foundry and machine factory: present German value, 12,500,000 RM; Russian accredited value 5,200,000 RM.
3. German experts were ordered by the Russians to make a survey of all SAG mines in Saxony and to report their estimated present value. These figures were compiled by Germans who were not pro-Russian and, when they were rechecked by Russian experts, they were invariably lowered. The Russian administration further lowered the figures presented by the Russian experts, but this final set of figures was not available.
